Recent economic times harkens back to the depression days in America. The Pensacola Historical Museum is hosting the exhibit Collard Greens and Artistic Scenes: Pensacola Women of the 1930s, which highlights Pensacola women during the Great Depression.

The Pensacola Historical Society Guild is hosting a presentation by Elizabeth Vickers, exhibit designer of Collard Greens and Artistic Scenes on Monday, November 16 as the kick-off to the new membership program year.

Come enjoy refreshments as you view the exhibit in the Pensacola Historical Museum starting at 5:00. At 6:00, join Elizabeth Vickers in the J. Earle Bowden Building as she offers a short presentation on the exhibit, and then stay for a showing of the Smithsonian Channel's Soul of a People.

Pensacola Women of the 1930s

The Pensacola Historical Society Guild is the membership organization born out of the merger of the Pensacola Historical Society and West Florida Historic Preservation Inc. This presentation is the first of our quarterly 2009 membership programs. These programs are free and the general public is encouraged to attend. Refreshments are served. For more information contact Wendi Davis, 850.595.5985 x 111 or email wdavis4@uwf.edu.
